

- 1
- 2
- 3
- 4
- 5

A method of pretreating a carrier component for a cementitious composition. A carrier component of a cementitious composition is analyzed to determine its adsorption potential for a component of the composition. The quantity of the component is treated with an effective amount of a chemical agent to control the adsorption potential.